

Charles S. Peirce menciona a Herbert Spencer en los siguientes lugares de sus obras:

W2: 314; W4: 552; W5: xli, 232, 296, 298; his evolutionism, 260; W6: xxvi, 451-52, 499, 502, 505; articles of Spencerian confession, 400, 501; his clumsy evolutionism, lxxvii, 397; Collins's Epitome, lxxv, 401; his consensus method, lxxvi-lxxvii, 500, 504; on conservation of energy, lxxvii, 252, 398-99, 404-5, 427, 471-72, 501; criticism of his mechanism, lxxvii, 63, 398-99, 402-3; essence of his philosophy, 402; on evolution of the world, 427; on homogeneity and heterogeneity, 446, 501, 503; the logicality and completeness of his system questioned, 396-98, 407-9; New York Times debate, lxxiv, lxxvi-lxxviii; not evolutionist enough, lxxvii, 407; his reputation and method of reasoning questioned, 395-96, 403, 404; his reputation defended by Messenger, 502; on the Unknowable, lxxvii, 398, 500; W8: xxxiii, liii, lxix, lxix 81, 87, 347, 365, 381, 385, 431-32, 433, 465, 627; criticism of his notion of scientific inquiry, lii-liii, 242-43; criticism of his theory of evolution, 101-2, 243-44; half-evolutionist, 102; his pseudo-evolutionism, 593;

HP: 417-493;

NEM3: 891, 1034; NEM4: xviii, 141;

RLT: 89, 258; PPM: 165; Spencer-Bain theory of development,

CN2: 112; Spencer's "First Principles", CN2: 100; Spencer's books, CN2: 100; Spencer's educational theories, CN3: 201; Spencer's invalidism; CN3: 199; Spencer's limitations, CN3: 200; Spencer's own view of evolution, CN3: 199; Spencer's philosophy, CN1: 112; Spencer's principle, CN3: 199; Spencer's special doctrine, CN2: 227; Spencer's theory, CN2: 113; Spencer's writings CN1: 192; Spenceresque, CN1: 191; Spencerian, CN3: 200, 201; Spencerianism, CN1: 096;

EP1: xxii, 222, 239, 289; EP2: 158, 259, 373, 458, 520 n 35, 535 n 4(1).